

Biotechnology and financial markets

Kean Birch

Department of Social Sciences, York University, Toronto, Canada

Contact: kean@yorku.ca

Life science firms are asset-based enterprises rather than commodity-based ones, in that their value is derived from trade in intellectual property and financial investments, not from the production of biological commodities or materials.